If you are a perfectionist and would like to know _____ to overcome it in order to not be so uptight about things all the time, then read on. Perfectionism can be a good thing _____ situations. For example, it's probably a good idea to have people who want to do everything perfect to build an aircraft, you know, _____ safety purposes. The problem _____ trying to be perfect all the time is that it can cause you to not take action. You can end up doing nothing instead of just doing something. Let's look at why this happens and what you can do _____ it.

Perfectionists will often delay performing a task _____ to wanting to wait until everything is perfect. What they do is take the ready, set, ready, set, set, ready, set, set, set approach. _____ you never fire, you will never hit your target. It's the fear of doing something wrong or not doing something well enough that causes you to not even want to take action.

If you are a perfectionist who keeps delaying action _____ you want to wait for everything to be perfect, then here is a reality check: It will never be perfect. The best way to overcome perfectionism is to _____ take action. You need to take the ready, fire, aim approach. If you have it really bad, then you may even want to try the fire, ready, aim approach. Just take action and figure the details _____ you go.
